In spite of the many challenges that we face here at Delta and in our society, we have much to be thankful for in so many ways. We often don't take the time to count up our many blessings and our general good fortune at being residents of such a prosperous country. The holidays are a time of celebration, but they should also be a time of reflection and of appreciation for what we have (rather than lamenting or complaining about what we don't have as we so often do).

As you all head off on this long holiday weekend to be with family or friends, I want to wish everyone at Delta a safe (watch out for those wishbones) and Happy Thanksgiving! Enjoy!!
